

Muga silk is one of the rarest silk in the world obtained from a semi-domesticated multivoltine silkworm called Antheraea assamensis which is endemic to the state of Assam. Its natural tones of golden yellow and rare sheen become more lustrous with every wash. Its moisture regain capacity is about 30%, which is better than other silks.

Muga silk absorbs 85.08% of the harmful ultra violet rays in sunshine which act as a sunshield protection for the skin. Its durability is said to be more than 100 years.
